The first clinically important direct visualization of the human trigeminal root entry zone in vivo. Trigeminal neuralgia is characterized by severe paroxysmal pain in the distribution of the trigeminal nerve. The trigeminal root entry zone (REZ), which is associated with trigeminal nerve root damage, is thought to be the cause of the pain in most cases of trigeminal neuralgia. We successfully visualized the trigeminal REZ in vivo for the first time by injecting a mixture of 1% polyacrylamide/2% methylene blue (pH 7.4) directly into the REZ in the three cephalic branches of the trigeminal nerve. We confirmed the location of the REZ by examining the extension of the demyelinating change from the trigeminal root to the sensory root. This direct visualization of the REZ in vivo using an ultrasonic surgical aspirator under local anesthesia in the REZ is a useful method for understanding the pathogenesis of trigeminal neuralgia.

This software utility is non-obtrusive, as it goes in the system tray from the first launch. Right-clicking the systray icon brings up a context menu which enables you to show or hide the app, and access the Help contents or the settings panel. The latter enables you to change the keyboard shortcuts, customize all the colors and font types used all throughout the program, show or hide different versions of the Bible (if any), as well as display the verse number only in ranges, view long or short book name and place citation before, after or on a separate line.
